MAISON LADURÉE

160 YEARS
OF EXPERTISE.

Born in Rue Royale, now reigning supreme over all things delicious

The story of Maison Ladurée began in 1862 when Louis-Ernest Ladurée decided to open his patisserie shop in Rue Royale, Paris.

His daughter-in-law Jeanne Souchard had the ground-breaking idea of adding a dining area to the shop. This became one of the first French-style tea houses. In the early 20th century, Louis-Ernest Ladurée's little cousin Pierre Desfontaines propelled the Parisian macaron centre stage. Maison Ladurée became synonymous with this delicious little round cake that reinvents itself season after season.

"The ultimate maison à la française.

An icon of French high patisserie."
